Portfolio Essay

In high school, I thought in-class learning was normal to me. Paying attention to the teacher's lecture and writing down notes for upcoming tests and quizzes. Some of the times I might be late for class due from rain, or my class is far from my other destination. Students would be talking in the class causing the teacher to stop and lecture them about not talking. When COVID-19 came around, I was relieved when we got the chance to stay home and do our assignments from there. Going into college as a freshman doing online classes has been a huge difference. I can write missing notes that I haven't got from my professor's lecture within the files, attending class on time, no students interrupting while the professor is lecturing, tests and quizzes are online, and we are able to see our grades. Online learning is now my favorite thing.
