

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Pro-Enviro Fair St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands

Earth Day in the Sunny Caribbean, where oneness with nature remains an experience! The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Virgin Islands Office is hosting its 3rd Annual Pro-Enviro Fair :

Date: April 20, 2007

Place: University of the Virgin Islands Sports & Fitness Center

Time: 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's goal is to underscore the importance of the earth, and the need to protect our natural resources. The agency has committed to making Earth Day a celebration annually, highlighting successes in environmental enhancement. The Fair will feature an array of presenters from government/non-governmental agencies and not-for-profit organizations. Presenters will have displays and hands-on activities to inform and excite the youths, and the community. The Fair is open to the public; however, with a general focus on students in the community. Up to 40 students per school from both public and private schools have been invited to attend the fair. We anticipate that roughly 800 students in grades ranging from 3rd through 12th, and interested members from the public will attend. The 2007 Pro-Enviro Fair is co-sponsored by the Virgin Islands Network of Environmental Educators (VINE); and will have representation from the Department of Planning & Natural Resources, University of the Virgin Islands, Coral World, Environmental Rangers, Virgin Islands Resource Conservation and Development Council, Virgin Islands Marine Advisory Services, Virgin Islands Waste Management Authority, and the Virgin Islands Water and Power Authority. For additional information please contact Mrs. Keshema Webbe or Mr. Jim Casey at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Office at 340-714-2333.
